

In the past year, have you...

- ⇒ Spent more time drinking or using than you meant to?
- ⇒ Neglected some of your usual responsibilities because of using alcohol or drugs?
- ⇒ Felt you needed to cut down on your drinking or drug use?
- ⇒ Did your family, a friend, or anyone else tell you they objected to your drinking or drug use?
- ⇒ Found yourself thinking a lot about drinking or using?
- ⇒ Used alcohol or drugs to relieve emotional discomfort, such as sadness, anger, or boredom?

If you answered 'yes' to at least two of the above questions, there is a good chance your use of alcohol or drugs has become out of control.

Addiction is the continued compulsive use of a substance or behavior in spite of adverse health or social consequences. It can happen to anyone. It is not a character flaw or a moral weakness. Addiction is a disease. It not only affects you but everyone close to you. Excessive alcohol and drug use acts as an effective solvent. It can dissolve families, marriages, friendships and careers.

It is not your fault.
